Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 21 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain arriving after a dry start.

Today:
A dry start, before outbreaks of rain return from the south through the morning, these then lasting for much of the day. Lighter winds than Saturday, and on the mild side. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Rain will gradually ease through the evening, before returning later and turning heavy for some. Staying cloudy throughout with light winds and feeling mild. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Monday:
Morning rain will turn patchy and by the afternoon it should become dry. Cloudy for most but with some late sunshine to end the day. Mild with light winds. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Largely dry, cloudy, and windy on Tuesday. Dry, windy, and cloudy to start on Wednesday before rain arrives later. Sunny spells with isolated showers on Thursday. Mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.